

Editorial Note from Publisher for Call for Papers

We are pleased to announce that the Journal of Applied Sciences and Modelling (JASM) is now accepting high-quality submissions for its upcoming issues. As an international, peer-reviewed open-access journal, JASM provides a platform for researchers, academicians, and industry professionals to publish cutting-edge work across applied sciences and modelling disciplines.

To support global research dissemination and encourage wider participation, the Article Processing Charge (APC) for all accepted papers is absolutely ZERO. Authors are invited to submit original research articles, reviews, technical notes, and case studies that contribute to advances in scientific applications, computational modelling, and interdisciplinary innovations.

We welcome your valuable contributions and look forward to publishing impactful research that inspires scientific progress.